Emmet and Farrand on Title (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Conveyancing	Emmet & Farrand on Title enjoys pre-eminent status as the go-to text for comprehensive and authoritative coverage of all property matters, confirmed by regular citation in judgments of the High Court and the Court of Appeal over the last year. 2024 looks set to be a year of dramatic changes for property law with regular updates examining the problems unfolding from the new regime for tower blocks introduced by the Building Safety Act 2022 building on the detailed analysis of the new regime already incorporated into Emmet & Farrand. Meanwhile the fate and timing of other expected Government-sponsored property law reforms may remain uncertain, but major changes in planning law affecting day-to-day land transactions now seem likely as the Levelling-up and Regeneration Bill 2023 passes through Parliament. Most notably, the likely abolition of the 4-year rule for enforcement of planning infringements will need to be considered by buyers, sellers and potential developers. Litigators and transactional lawyers will also need to understand the new disclosure landscape introduced by the Levelling-up and Regeneration Bill, and take action on developments in conveyancers' negligence liability, new decisions on estoppel and the formalities for dispositions.
Employee Share Schemes (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Tax	Upcoming releases for 2024 will include the re-writing of various sections with clearer explanations and addition of technical points or commentary on HMRC practices which have been highlighted by instructions received or discussions in the Share Plan Lawyers and other groups of practitioners.
Encyclopedia of Compulsory Purchase and Compensation (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Planning and Environment	Forthcoming releases in 2024 will include coverage of all legislative changes and the Law Commission investigation. Notable changes are in the Levelling Up and Regeneration Bill, particularly (a) the proposal that the Secretary of State may, in some cases, direct that compensation payable under a compulsory purchase order be limited to existing use value – i.e. other than market value, and (b) proposals to amend sections 14 to 17 of the Land Compensation Act 1961. There are also important changes proposed in relation to the making and confirmation of CPOs. The process of reviewing the commentary on all of the main sections of the 1961 and 1965 Acts relating to valuation will continue.
Encyclopedia of Consumer Credit Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Banking and Financial Services	It is the 50th anniversary of the Consumer Credit Act 1974 and the Encyclopedia of Consumer Credit Law in 2024. Forthcoming coverage in 2024 will include updates relating to the complete overhaul of the Consumer Credit regime by HMT and FCA; coverage of the implications of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2023 and its impact on EU-derived legislation and EU case law; implementation of Buy-Now-Pay-Later (BNPL) regulation; and relevant case law.
Encyclopedia of Data Protection and Privacy (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Data Protection	Forthcoming coverage will include updates to data protection principles and territorial scope. The chapter on UK and EU GDPR definitions is also being updated to reflect new guidance that has been issued by the Information Commissioner's Office.
Encyclopedia of Environmental Health Law and Practice (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Planning and Environment	Forthcoming coverage will include the annotation of relevant provisions of the Environment Act 2021 and the Building Safety Act 2022 as they come into force, and the changes that the 2022 Act is making to the Building Act 1984. It will also include all relevant new statutory instruments, including those that are likely to be generated by the Retained EU Law (Revocation and Reform) Act 2023. Where appropriate, there will be comment and analysis on the changes, including through the Recent Developments section, which will also include updates on matters such as recent court decisions relating to the statutory nuisance regime, and the work of the Environment Agency and the recently created Office for Environmental Protection.

TITLE	FORMAT	PRACTICE AREA	FORTHCOMING UPDATES
Encyclopedia of Environmental Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Planning and Environment	Forthcoming releases will include updated commentary on International Conventions, including the Paris Agreement; commentary on the new Agreement under the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea on the conservation and sustainable use of marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction; an extended section on the climate; commentary on and application of the Retained EU Law (Revocation and Reform) Act 2023, so far as it applies to environmental law; increased focus on international environmental agreements as the post-Brexit basis for relevant UK instruments; further application of amendments made to primary legislation by the Environment Act 2021; and new secondary legislation under that Act. There will also be coverage of new case law on issues such as the need to include the impacts of downstream greenhouse gas emissions resulting from the use of refined products of crude oil extraction projects in an environmental impact assessment; the right to bring a private law claim in nuisance and/or trespass against in respect of unauthorised discharges of untreated foul water into a canal; and the need for appropriate assessment under the Habitats Directive and Regulations.
Encyclopedia of European Union Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	European Union	The following key areas are being and will continue to be covered and updated - Brexit decisions from the EU and from the various Brexit specialised committees; EU Covid-related legislation, mainly that concerning free movement of EU citizens and aliens; and selected texts relating to the Ukraine war, mainly sanctions decisions against Russia, Belarus and Iran. Also covered are EU assistance measures to help Ukraine and Moldova, including the recent Regulation to encourage ammunition manufacture in support of the Ukraine war effort. There will be updates on legislation on cross-border criminal justice as well as updates on the measures relating to migration and asylum, including the EU Asylum Agency. There will be coverage of the new EU-New Zealand free trade agreement, the new fundamental revision of the Cotonou ACP Agreement with 79 partner states, developments in existing free trade agreements, and any new such agreements, e.g. potentially with Australia. Treatment will be given to ISDS and similar developments in arbitration within the EU and regulation of the oceans.
Encyclopedia of Financial Services Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Banking and Financial Services	Forthcoming coverage in 2024 includes updating and expansion of the commentary on the enactment of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2023. This is the most significant statutory development in the UK financial services regulatory regime since the establishment of the FCA. The Act makes significant changes to the UK's financial services regulatory framework and the authors, Gough Square Chambers, will be working hard during 2024 to ensure that the EFS reflects these changes and provides useful commentary, including - widespread revocation of retained EU law; a new Designated Activities regime, which implements the Future Regulatory Framework review; and new regulatory processes for approving financial promotions.
Encyclopedia of Highway Law and Practice (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Local Government	Releases will include recent legislation; The Deregulation Act 2015 that will change the law and procedure for public rights of way when fully in force; The Public Order 2023 will give more police powers to protect key national infrastructure from protesters; The Environment Act 2021 will require highway authorities to consult before cutting down street trees; The Restricted Roads (20 mph Speed Limit) (Wales) Order 2022 will lower the speed limit for restricted roads in Wales to 20mph. Future Legislation will include The Roadworks (Regulation) Bill will allow highway authorities to refuse permits for street works and to charge penalties for delays; The Safety Cameras Bill will require revised guidance on the use and visibility of speed and red-light cameras for traffic enforcement; The Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 (Amendment) Bill will expand the right of public access to the countryside to include more areas. Releases will also cover new statutory instruments and caselaw relating to highways, public rights of way and traffic regulation.

Encyclopedia of Housing Law and Practice (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Local Government	Forthcoming coverage of new legislation will include the Renters (Reform) Bill (the end of assured shorthold tenancies), and the Social Housing (Regulation) Bill (transparency in social housing). Coverage of new case law will include the Supreme Court decisions in R (Imam) v Croydon LBC on mandatory orders under the Housing Act 1996, and Wolverhampton CC v London Gypsies and Travellers on injunctions to prevent travellers on public land, and the Court of Appeal decisions in Global 100 Ltd v (1) Jimenez (2) Hounslow LBC on “property guardians” and HMO regulation, Howe v Accent Housing Ltd on RTB service charges, and Merthyr Tydfil MBC v Churchill on pre-issue requirements for “low value” disrepair claims. Some of the Key Issues will be rewritten and there will be new Key Issues on Building Safety and on Article 6.
Encyclopedia of Information Technology Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	IT, Media and Telecoms	In 2024, updates will contextualise and summarise the UK’s plans for Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulation, including a contextual, sector-based regulatory framework. The regulation will address issues that could harm public trust in AI, such as data-driven or algorithmic social scoring, biometric identification, and the use of AI systems in law enforcement, education, and employment. Regulation will need to ensure that AI systems are trustworthy, AI risks are mitigated, and those developing, implementing, and using AI technologies can be held accountable. Updates will also be provided on the Data Protection and Digital Information Bill, which will establish a post-Brexit UK data protection law regime that diverges significantly from the EU GDPR. The Bill extends beyond data protection to an assortment of areas related to digital information, including the governance of AI in the UK. Updates on reform to cybersecurity legislation and regulation, as well as the Online Safety Bill, will also be provided.
Encyclopedia of Insurance Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Insurance	Recent releases have included case summaries of Brian Leighton (Garages) Ltd v Allianz Insurance Plc and Stonegate Pub Co Ltd v Amlin Corporate Memberas as well as extensive updates to the section on The Motor Insurers' Bureau.

Topics for forthcoming issues are expected to include: the future of benefit sanctions; universal credit and the rule of law; administrative fairness in the digital welfare state; “Virtual” social security: An Australian perspective; age as a condition of entitlement to social security; personal independence payment and collective administrative justice; and perceptions of Sweden’s welfare state. Some of these and other topics are planned for coverage in issues designated as 30th anniversary issues, in articles written by many of the leading figures in the field in the UK and internationally.
Keating on JCT Contracts (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Construction	In 2024 there will be ongoing up-to-date coverage of all new cases dealing with the JCT Forms plus in depth commentary on all the major Forms in the Suite, including a comprehensive discussion of the delay and disruption mechanisms and payment regime taking into account all relevant authorities. Updated commentary taking account of new relevant legislation including the Building Safety Act 2022 will be incorporated. Commentary will also include consideration of impact of COVID-19.
Kemp & Kemp: Personal Injury Law, Practice and Procedure (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Personal Injury	2023 coverage includes changes to QOCS rules which reverse the effect of the decisions of the Supreme Court in Ho and the Court of Appeal in Cartwright , increasing the ability of defendants to offset costs orders against payments made to claimants, and a change that will affect decisions relating to making and accepting Part 36 offers. A trio of QOCS rules were discussed in both personal injury and non-personal injury law claims in Wokingham BC v Arshad , Achille v Lawn Tennis Association Services , and Pathan v Commissioner of Police for the Metropolis . In addition the recent release of the looseleaf also includes a discussion on The Motor Vehicles (Compulsory Insurance) Act 2022, which reduces the scope of compulsory road traffic insurance by departing from the line of ECJ authority requiring broader interpretation of the obligation. Other significant cases included in the recent release were AIC Limited v Federal Airports Authority of Nigeria , a Supreme Court decision on challenges to draft judgments; Abbott v MOD , where the High Court refused to allow group litigation by the back door and prohibited the use of one claim form to bring 3,500 diverse claims against one defendant to name a few.
Kemp & Kemp: Quantum of Damages (Sweet & Maxwell)	Looseleaf and ProView	Personal Injury	The looseleaf in 2024 will endeavour to continue including recent case law and legislative changes affecting all areas of personal injury claims. In 2023 for example significant updates were made to the following chapters. Chapter 1 on Assessment of Damages considers the balance that needs to be struck between delaying the final determination of issues of quantum in the interests of accuracy with the desire that both claimants and defendants may have for resolving their differences sooner rather than later. In this regard the recent case of Benford v E and N Hertfordshire NHS Trust [2023] was discussed thoroughly. In Chapter 3 on Non-Pecuniary Losses, the approach in Hicks v Chief Constable [1992] was considered and whether the analysis of the appropriate award for pain and suffering in the minutes before death should be revisited if a similar issue were to arise in the future. The same chapter also considered all the recent updates on whiplash claims. In chapter 50 on Liability in Sports Injuries the recent case of Czernuska v King [2023] EWHC 380 (QB) was discussed. A case that considers the formulation and application of the test for the standard of care required in sports cases.

Schofield's Election Law (Sweet & Maxwell)	CBR and ProView	Local Government	Updates and commentary for 2024 will include the detailed secondary legislation for scheduled elections in May 2024 (for a number of local council and mayoral elections in England, as well as for police and crime commissioner elections in England and Wales). Also, it is likely a UK general election will take place during 2024, that will be for the first time under many new constituency boundary changes, and with significant changes in electoral law. Those changes arise from the continued phased introduction of the provisions in the Elections Act 2022 and related secondary legislation. This includes voter ID at polling stations, changes to postal and proxy voting rules, changing the voting system for some elections, as well as extending the ability of British citizens overseas to vote. It also includes significant changes to campaigning and political finance rules. More generally there continues to be further legislation being made that will impact on electoral law in 2024, such as the National Security Act 2023 (offences relating to foreign interference in elections), the Ballot Secrecy Act 2023 (offences for inappropriate accompanied voting at polling stations), and the Online Safety Bill (regulating online democratic content). Governments in Wales and Scotland are considering bringing forward legislation that make other changes to electoral law for their devolved parliamentary and local elections, impacting on for example the franchise and voter registration, and it is expected that there will be continuing developments in case law on election matters across the UK.
Scottish Family Law Legislation (W.Green)	Looseleaf and ProView	Family and Social Welfare	In 2024, amongst other updates, coverage will look at effects of the Children (Scotland) Act 2020 as further provisions come into force, and the impact of the Scottish Law Commission's Report on cohabitation.
Scottish Human Rights Service (W.Green)	Looseleaf	Human Rights	Future updates will continue to monitor the impact of divergence from European legislation and the effects of the review by Scotland's National Task Force for Human Rights Leadership; and amendments in the lead-up to the introduction of a new human rights framework for Scotland.
Scottish Social Work Legislation (W.Green)	Looseleaf and ProView	Social Welfare	There has been extensive change in the area of social work in Scotland and this will continue into 2024. Coverage will include effects of the Children (Scotland) Act as further provisions come into force, and ongoing impact of the legislative review under the Adult Support and Protection Improvement Plan.
Sweet & Maxwell International Sports Law Review (Sweet & Maxwell)	Journal and ProView	Sports Law	In 2024, this journal will be tracking changes across the global sporting law arena, including in the areas of licensing; doping guidance; intellectual property rights; an international survey of different sports; attitudes to Russian sportsmen/women; and sportswashing.
