The Wildy team would like to wish all our customers a happy and prosperous new year.

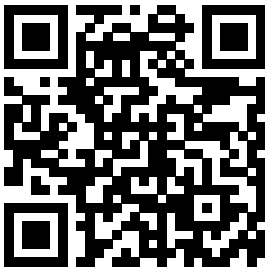

December has been a bumper month for new books as you can see from the pages that follow. Increasingly, publishers are offering ebook versions of some familiar titles.

We have begun planning our travels for next year and you can check whether we will be in your area by referring to our Wildy trips section page 36.

We have slightly altered our section on subscriptions this month. For releases to annual subscriptions we now advise that you refer to our website for the most up-to-date and complete information.

Everyone at Wildy's is looking forward to 2014.

NEW REPRINT to commence the new WILDY CLASSIS SERIES
NOW IN PAPERBACK

Forensic Fables appeared first in the Law Journal and then in book form between 1926 and 1932. They were published anonymously, but their authorship was quickly guessed. The literary style and the pictorial delineation were alike unmistakable. They were the work of Theo Mathew composed in his study on the ground floor at the back of 31 Cornwall Gardens. They show his wit in all its maturity

Theo Mathew was born in 1866, the elder son of Lord Justice Mathew. Educated at the Oratory School and Trinity College, Oxford he was called to the bar in 1890 and practised in the South-Eastern Circuit and in London. He established a substantial common law practice and was frequently briefed in commercial cases. In later years he specialised increasingly in libel. He was the author of The Practice of the Commercial Court and for some years was Editor of Commercial Cases. Recorder of Margate from 1913 to 1927 and of Maidstone from 1927 to 1936, Theo Mathew was a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn and was due to become Treasurer when he died in the summer of 1939.

Throughout his life, in addition to his legal work, he found time to write articles literary and historical, mainly with a legal flavour. He was widely recognised as the wittiest member of the Bar, his style lighter than his father's and with a perfect spontaneity. He had a delightful sense of the ridiculous and had a merciless eye for the pretentious. Nor was his wit limited to legal subjects; he admitted once, very reluctantly, that he was responsible for the famous 'Dr. Livingstone, I presume?' story.

Theo Mathew had a deep respect for the traditions of his profession and great affection for so many of those who practised it. This book is evidence of both.

Based on the last complete edition of 1961 and including Hubert Picarda's article "Stick to a Stuff-Gown" originally published in the New Law Journal in 1982.

A SHORT BOOK OF BAD JUDGES

Graeme Williams

Price: £9.99
ISBN: 9780854901418
Extent: 80 pp
Binding: Hardback

This is a deliberately short book, summarizing the legal, and in one case the political, life of some of the bad Judges of the last 100 plus years. No claim of completeness is made as to either the inclusion or exclusion of individuals. Having been at the English Bar for most of the second half of the 20th century, a time when judicial standards were very high, the author hopes that an account of some of the undesirable qualities of earlier days may serve as a warning for the future, and prevent the return of the Bad Old Days. The author hopes that a warning of how bad the judiciary was, in many, but certainly not all instances, may be interesting and possibly even useful, in avoiding previous mistakes.

DISAGREEMENT AND DISSENT IN JUDICIAL DECISION-MAKING

Frederic Reynold

Price: £45.00
ISBN: 9780854901272
Extent: 229 pp
Binding: Hardback

Frederic Reynold provides an engaging analysis of disagreement and dissent in judicial decision-making. He explores the root causes of disagreement in cases decided over the last 25 years or so in the House of Lords and the Supreme Court, and the light they throw on the character of judicial decision-making at this level.

Disagreement and Dissent in Judicial Decision-making seeks to provide answers to a number of topical questions:

- To what extent, if any, have judges observed the distinction between legal policy (a legitimate matter of concern to them) and public policy (which generally speaking is not)?
- Can a non-lawyer be in a position to assess the merits of the competing views of the majority and the minority?
- Can one talk in any meaningful sense of achieving “a balance” in the membership of the Supreme Court?
- Is the UK Supreme Court, in terms of character and function, heading in the direction of the US Supreme Court?

Split decisions of the law lords and (since October 2009) justices of the Supreme Court have always exercised a particular fascination, and especially those decisions featuring a bare majority. The analysis given here will throw light on a number of topical concerns, eg: the balance in the composition of, and the appointment of justices to, the Supreme Court; and the boundaries between judicial and political decision-making.

Frederic Reynold has enjoyed a long career at the Bar, specialising in employment and contract law and related areas. He has appeared in several landmark House of Lords cases as well as more recently in the Supreme Court. In the course of his career he has advised the Equal Opportunity Commission, the BMA (on contractual and disciplinary issues concerning consultants and doctors), and the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors (in respect of professional standards and practice). He was appointed a QC in 1982 and elected a Master of the Bench of Grays Inn in 1991. He is a member of the Industrial Law Society and the Employment Lawyers Association.

A COURT IN THE CITY
Civil and Commercial Litigation in London at the Beginning of the 21st Century

JCL Studies in Comparative Law No. 7

Simon Roberts

Price: £65.00
ISBN: 9780854901319
Extent: 180 pp
Binding: Hardback

This is a study, from a sociological/anthropological perspective, of the shifting emphasis in English civil justice from adjudication to settlement and mediation.

It gives particular attention to the work of the Mayor's and City of London Court, contextualizing some of the findings of the author's recent fieldwork there, in a discussion of the broader transformations that have taken place in both civil justice and the anthropological and sociological discourse about the nature of law and its place in society. Situated next to the Guildhall, in the heart of the city, the Mayor's and City of London Court claims to be the oldest civil court in England. This volume examines the contemporary work of the court in sponsoring settlement against the backdrop of a Victorian building constructed to deliver trial and judgment.

Simon Roberts has taught at the LSE since 1964. His main teaching and research interests are in the anthropology of law, the law of property and the field of alternative dispute resolution.

LAND REGISTRATION MANUAL

Second Edition

David Rees

Price: £95.00
ISBN: 9780854901296
Extent: 635 pp
Size: 229 mm x 152 mm
Binding: Paperback

Written by an author who has extensive experience in private practice, the Land Registry, and the academic sector, Land Registration Manual is a concise but authoritative source of technical and practical advice on all matters relating to registered land and interests affecting it.

The book's alphabetical (A to Z) approach allows practitioners to zoom in on the specific topic they are dealing with, knowing that the book will provide useful background commentary, along with clear guidance on the form and content of relevant Land Registry applications, which are specific to that topic. The topics are geared to aspects of day-to-day practice rather than areas of law as such – making it easy to use and more relevant to busy practitioners, enabling you to come up with the answer(s) you need, rather than trying to 'fit' your practical problem into one or more broad sections of a book.

Land Registration Manual covers not only the usual subjects, but also many less frequently encountered topics which are often not covered elsewhere. Thus its coverage extends not only from transfers to leases, but from bare trusts to franchises; options to powers of attorney; and chancel repair to embankments and sea walls. Each topic contains accurate commentary to aid understanding and clear guidance on the relevant applications which may need to be made to complete a transaction or protect a client's interests. This makes the book an invaluable 'one-stop' source of guidance for busy practitioners, from partners through to paralegals, and for students through to academics.

David Rees is a solicitor with 25 years' experience initially in private practice and latterly as an Assistant Land Registrar at HM Land Registry. He is an External Examiner to the Solicitors Regulation Authority, an External Tutor to the CILEx Law School and an experienced lecturer and author.
